

B.I.O.T. Working Papers

Figures in the B.I.O.T. working paper series which refer to the population of Chagos are based on the last full analysis held in March 1968, and which owing to the movement of families since that date, should be regarded as only approximate. A further obstacle to accurate assessment of the labour force/family ratio is that some of the married women and older children work as labourers but the proportion fluctuates. In certain instances quoted in relation to commercial aspects the numbers of labourers are calculated rather than those of families, the varying sizes of which make any count no more than guesswork based on past averages.

Pacific and Indian Ocean Department

March, 1969.